Watercolor Paintings at Boerner Botanical Gardens

Hales Corners, WI - (September 11, 2012) Boerner Botanical Gardens, 9400 Boerner Drive is pleased to exhibit selected paintings of Southeastern, WI watercolor artist, Terry A. Fischer. Several of the artist's brilliant works are now on display in the Garden House at Boerner Botanical Gardens and will remain there through October 20, 2012.

From her own statement, Terry is inspired not only by the beauty that God created in a place, but by the lives that have touched the landscape and may have left a bit of themselves there. Sometimes she can almost feel the history as she walks the land. Terry has lived and painted all of her life in Southeastern Wisconsin where she is ever amazed at nature's variety.

Terry finds the relaxed feel of a watercolor to be the perfect medium to create the softness of distant fog while still brisk enough for sparkling waters. She finds that watercolor lends versatility and excitement to landscapes.

Currently at Boerner Botanical Gardens the perennial and annual flowers are in full and vivid bloom. Visitors are welcome from sunrise to sundown, though doors open at 8am. Sunday Brunch is offered through Bartolotta Catering from 10am to 1:30pm. Admission rates to the gardens are $5 for adults and $3 for children ages 6-17.
