

Here's my suggestion to break the stalemate between Mayor de Blasio and NYPD:

Mayor de Blasio started this rift. If he wants to show a gesture of good faith that he's sincere in his now praise of NYPD officers, he should immediately either in person or by written statement, disavow any further association with race-hustler Al Sharpton. Sharpton is a vulgar human being who spews hate and divisiveness. No prominent person holding a position of significance should spend time with, be in the company of, or take counsel from Al Sharpton. Then it will be incumbent upon the NYPD union officials to accept the apology and begin a new relationship with the mayor.
