Inmate Dies of Overdose After Escape from Court-Run Day Reporting Center

Milwaukee, WI – The Milwaukee County Sheriff's Office was notified yesterday that an inmate who was granted court-run Day Reporting Center (DRC) release privileges and did not return to the jail on August 30 has died. Milwaukee police found Cary Paszkiewicz on August 31 and took him to St. Luke's Hospital. He had overdosed after his escape.

Paszkiewicz, age 31, had been incarcerated for Possession of a Narcotic, and was serving twelve months at the county jail with court-ordered Day Reporting privileges for AODA and parenting classes. His good time release date was December 6, and his full time release date was set for March 7, 2013.

Sheriff Clarke said, "This is yet another example of a lenient judiciary and an abuse of Huber privileges. The use of this failed social engineering project by the judiciary allowed a drug addict, who could not be counted on to stay away from drugs, to be out in the community. We have AODA treatment in-house and there is no reason to let people out for it, or we should get rid of the jail treatment programs to save taxpayer money. Had they opted for the in-house treatment available, he would still be alive today."
