Treasury and Risk Honors Milwaukee County Treasurer With Alexander Hamilton Achievement Award for Excellence

Treasury and Risk Magazine has announced that it will recognize the Office of the Milwaukee County Treasurer at its Best Practices Summit and Awards Conference in New York City on October 1, 2012.

Treasury and Risk, a national magazine on financial management, holds an annual Executive Summit to review innovative approaches and solutions to challenges and opportunities facing finance today. Its Alexander Hamilton Awards are designed to recognize excellence in finance and treasury management organizations worldwide.

Milwaukee County will receive an Alexander Hamilton Achievement Award for technology excellence: modernizing treasurer office and banking operations, enhancing public access and improving the quality of services, promoting the automation of purchasing procedures, and increasing revenues and productivity while reducing expenditures.

“We were honored to be chosen for this national award,” said Milwaukee County Treasurer Dan Diliberti. “It is recognition of all the hard work and teamwork of our office staff and our partners in the computer services division.”

In congratulating the winners, Donna Miskin, Editor-in-Chief of Treasury and Risk Magazine, noted that the interest in the awards has been growing every year.

“This year, the Alexander Hamilton competition again drew a record number of entries,” said Miskin. “They include increasingly complex and sophisticated projects, reflecting creativity and adaptability to today’s rapidly changing financial landscape.”
