Surety Bond Guarantees

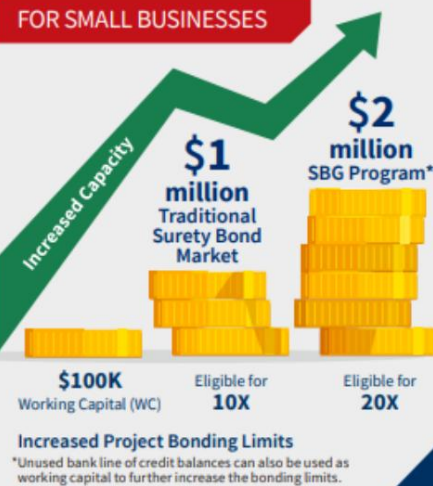

Help Small Businesses Thrive and Grow

Maybe you're in the construction, service or supply industries and realize that you need a surety bond to compete for new or larger contracts. What do you do? As a small or emerging business your options may be limited. For over 50 years the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) has helped small businesses get their first surety bond or increase their bonding capacity through the Surety Bond Guarantee (SBG) program.

Bridge the Gap

With SBA-guaranteed bonds, working capital requirements are lower — while the traditional market provides for 10 times working capital, the SBG program provides 20 times working capital. Unused lines of credit can be used as capital, and applicants have a decision in hours for projects under $400,000. And surety companies and agents authorized to issue these bonds have years of experience working with small businesses.

Overcome issues with credit scores or limited resources, establish your own bonding track record, and build for the future.

Consider the SBA

- Compete for bigger contracts — government and private
- Flexible requirements help you qualify for your own surety bonds
- Get approval within hours for small bonded projects
- Work with bonding agents who understand small business
- Enjoy peace of mind with a proven SBA program
