By achieving racial equity, Milwaukee is the healthiest county in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE COUNTY VISION STATEMENT

Overview

Racism has been and is a public health crisis in Milwaukee County. According to the County Health Rankings, Milwaukee County is, and has consistently been, one of the lowest-ranked counties for health in Wisconsin and, according to Federal Reserve Economic Data, Milwaukee County is one of our nation's most racially segregated areas.

According to 2019 statistics, a white person lives, on average, nearly 14 years longer than a black person and the infant mortality rate is nearly three (3) times higher for black infants compared to white infants. Race is a social construction with no biologic basis, yet racism may produce an assigned societal value based on the way a person looks that has resulted in race being a consistent predictor of a person's quality and length of life.

The Racial Equity Budget Tool (REBT) is a structured racial equity lens for departments to use to critically assess the impacts of budget decisions on communities of color. The tool is structured around Milwaukee County's strategic focus areas to help departments and decision makers better understand the pain points and opportunities to advancing the County's vision.

Milwaukee County's Racial Equity Budget Tool (REBT) is designed to:

Make intentional connections between the strategic plan and the budget.

Use racial equity as the key guiding principle for important decisions regarding investments or disinvestments.

Initiate conversations on topics related to the three-year strategic objectives among department leaders and employees.

Provide baseline data on departmental efforts to inform enterprise-wide decisions.

Milwaukee County Strategic Focus Areas

In 2019, Milwaukee County launched its first strategic plan in 20 years. This plan explicitly recognizes that racism is a public health crisis and leads with the vision that: By achieving racial equity, Milwaukee is the healthiest county in Wisconsin.

As part of the strategic plan, Milwaukee County leaders have committed to use a racial equity budget tool to ensure resource allocations advance the strategic focus areas and vision. The questions in this budget tool were guided by the strategic plan and were informed by best practices from other jurisdictions and the Government Alliance on Race and Equity (GARE).

1. Create Intentional Inclusion

- Reflect the full diversity of Milwaukee County at every level of County government.
- Create and nurture an inclusive culture across the Milwaukee County government.
- Increase the number of Milwaukee County contracts awarded to minority- and women-owned business.

2. Bridge the Gap

- Determine what, where, and how we deliver services based on the resolution of health disparities.
- Break down silos across Milwaukee County government to maximize access to and quality of services offered.
- Apply a racial equity lens to all decisions.

3. Invest in Equity

- Invest “upstream” to address root causes of health disparities.
- Enhance Milwaukee County’s fiscal health and sustainability.
- Dismantle barriers to diverse and inclusive communities.

Instructions

1. Submit only one REBT per department.

The REBT should reflect an analysis of the suite of budget decisions per department. Within answers to each question, details may be provided at the division level, as determined appropriate. Decision points should be analyzed as part of the comprehensive effort that your department is undertaking in addressing racial equity in programs, plans, policies, and power structures. Since departments are often tasked with cutting their budgets to reflect a reduction from their previous fiscal year's budget, a REBT should also include an analysis of how proposed reductions may or may not burden Black and Brown individuals and communities.

2. Keep the focus on the analysis of departments' improvements, reductions, and overall budget.

The REBT will focus on a racial equity analysis of decisions for new policies, programs, and plans under consideration, and the department's ongoing commitment to racial equity.

3. Use demographic data to help your department determine benefits and burdens of new decisions and overall budget.

State and federally collected demographic data resources are provided in Appendix C. Departments are encouraged to use any data they collect on their service users throughout the completion of the REBT. Data from other relevant and credible sources a department may have is also acceptable.

4. REBT technical assistance information and opportunities.

If you have questions related to the 2025 REBT, please attend one of the Strategy, Budget and Performance Open Office hours and bring the questions. All persons who may be expected to assist the department director in completing the REBT will be encouraged to participate.

- If you understand the question, but have difficulty determining how to answer a question, please contact your Budget Analyst for assistance.
- The Office of Equity should only be contacted on questions related to the racial equity components (glossary, concepts, etc..) that are unclear and cannot be addressed by your Budget Analyst. Send correspondence via email to equityoffice@milwaukeecountywi.gov.

RACIAL EQUITY BUDGET TOOL

Date Submitted: July 2025

Department: Milwaukee County Office of Equity (OOE)

Please note: each response field below has a 2,500-character limit.

STRATEGIC FOCUS AREA 1: CREATE INTENTIONAL INCLUSION

1. What activities are you doing to attract and retain a diverse and inclusive workforce in your department? What are the associated costs of these activities?

OOE collaborates closely with Human Resources (DHR) to enhance the reach and visibility of County workforce opportunities in communities that have traditionally been overlooked or underrepresented as potential talent pools. We include outreach efforts that connect with affinity groups outside mainstream recruitment channels. Oftentimes these efforts are paired with community events where OOE participates, such as cultural, educational or pro-social recreational activities that connect community members to Milwaukee County employment, resources, care or services.

Associated costs of these activities are incurred through staff time, community event sponsorship expenses, professional memberships and consultant contracts.

2. How do you use professional development and advancement opportunities to promote equity in your department's workforce? What resources are used to support these opportunities for professional development and advancement?

OOE continues to serve as the lead department for the County's membership in the Government Alliance on Race and Equity (GARE) which provides access to equity-focused professional development and technical assistance opportunities available to all County departments, leaders, and staff.

In 2024, OOE developed a rubric to assess the skills of professionals who work in government that are responsible for advancing equity. This rubric includes rankings for competencies associated with robust frameworks including GARE and other evidence informed models. Each staff member completed a self-assessment in addition to receiving coaching based on their scores. Subsequently, they developed individualized professional development plans. Additionally, OOE has provided staff with allocated time to participate in department-wide professional development opportunities that further their skills (e.g., Results Based Accountability, project management, design thinking).

During 2025, Job Evaluation Questionnaires (JEQs) for each role within OOE were revised to ensure that responsibilities aligned directly with skills required to advance Milwaukee County's strategic priorities. Further, professional development is available to help current employees sharpen the application of such skills.

In 2025 and 2026, OOE will also work with national institutions who provide technical assistance for department staff and leaders across the Milwaukee County enterprise.

3. Our employees can be a great resource for innovation and knowing what is working well and what needs work. Have you engaged a diverse group of frontline employees to inform decisions about your proposed budget changes? If yes, how was input solicited, who was involved, and what were the results?

In 2024, all staff participated in the office's strategic planning efforts, which informed the budget changes. Furthermore, staff who are responsible for activities in the department's operating plan were engaged to help leaders better understand which initiatives should be prioritized based on feedback from partners and community stakeholders that collaborate with staff.

In 2025, staff were asked to develop budgets for each project that was included in the operating plan which informed the department's annual budget. The Executive Director also held a department meeting to review changes to the budget and answer any questions staff had.

4. Are you tracking contracts with minority and women-owned business? If yes, please share percentages of each. If no, why not?

Yes. In 2025, 100% of our contracts were with minority or women-owned businesses.

STRATEGIC FOCUS AREA 2: BRIDGE THE GAP

5. How and when have service users, in diverse and inclusive communities, and other key stakeholders been engaged to inform decisions about changes in funding levels for services provided in your requested budget (who was involved, what was the forum, what were the results)?

The Office of Equity does not provide direct services to residents. However, OOE continues to utilize its budget to support community-based initiatives in diverse and inclusive communities through marketing and limited funding support for cultural, educational and pro-social recreational projects and events. OOE also facilitates community focused workshops, assists in coordinating budget listening sessions for the County Executive's Office, some County Board Supervisors, and provides consultation and technical assistance to community-based organizations and municipal leaders across Milwaukee County. The office also supports community engagement initiatives that have significant fiscal impact such as McGovern Park Senior Center, Future State, Climate Action, Investing in Justice: Courthouse Complex, etc.

6. Describe ways in which demographic and economic data were used to prioritize resource distribution. (Data can include sources found in the resources section of this tool, department collected data, or any other relevant data from other sources.)

a. Please provide specific examples of data and how that influenced decision making.

OOE continues to utilize available racial and economic data to inform the department's services, outreach, and community impact targets. Some examples include the Office of Emergency Management's EVE model, Milwaukee County Dashboards, African American Wellbeing Index, Hispanic Wellbeing Index, City of Milwaukee Community Health Assessment, State of WI health data, Community Development Alliance's Housing Plan, etc. OOE also continues to host multiple community listening sessions with cross sector/community-based leaders to get data directly from community. Expert panels, world café sessions, partnerships with philanthropy and national academic institutions (i.e. Harvard, Moritz College, University of WI-Milwaukee, etc.) were amongst some of the ways we conducted research and gathered data directly from community stakeholders.

b. Are there gaps in the data that need to be addressed to better understand disparities in equity?

There is opportunity to complete "Power Mapping" activities which will help Milwaukee County understand how best to leverage Milwaukee County assets (i.e., parks, access clinics, etc.) to ensure community members are able to access appropriate County resources, services and care.

7. a. How does your budget reflect efforts to work across departments to break down silos to maximize access to and quality of services offered?

OOE developed and manages a technical assistance platform. One of Milwaukee County's strategic goals is to "apply a racial equity lens to all decisions." Through the work of a cross-departmental strategy team with the support of the OOE, Milwaukee County determined that applying a racial equity lens requires:

- Communicating what racial equity means: the just and fair inclusion of people of color in decision-making.
- Understanding the relationship between power and racism and applying core concepts (i.e., fairness, justice, and inclusion) to drive change.
- Making a personal commitment to learning and unlearning and embracing discomfort to challenge personal biases and prejudices.
- Creating a culture and practices that center the lives and lived experiences of people of color in decision making (budget, programs, policies).

OOE also has a community engagement toolkit that is part of the technical assistance platform which helps Milwaukee County leaders respond to the needs and interests of community stakeholders. Furthermore, Milwaukee County's Health and Racial Equity Accelerator Toolkit (Equity Accelerator) is a hub of resources that strives to make these equity practices tangible. Whether you are a Milwaukee County employee, systems leader from the public and private sectors, or community leader, you can find resources here to drive forward Milwaukee County's vision of race and health equity.

8. What are the expected benefits and potential unintended consequences to disadvantaged communities of your proposed budget changes?

Our intended impact stems from our goals to empower residents most impacted by racial and health inequities while building capacity within the county to apply a racial equity lens to all decision making.

a. What analysis did you do to determine the expected benefits and potential unintended consequences?

We are mitigating unintended consequences by using evidence informed frameworks to analyze risks and issues related to our work. OOE aims to incorporate community validated practices in addition to appropriate data sources.

Community validated practice helps reduce unintentional consequences by ensuring that the strategies and actions taken are informed by the lived experiences and insights of community members. By involving the community in the validation process, projects are more likely to address real needs, avoid misunderstandings, and prevent overlooking critical factors. This inclusive approach fosters trust, improves relevance and mitigates the risk of unintended negative impacts on the community.

b. What will your department do to mitigate unintended consequences resulting from your proposed budget changes?

Being transparent with community stakeholders and actively engaging them helps to ensure we are implementing community validated practices and maintaining communication about financial strain experienced by Milwaukee County. In 2026, we anticipate closing out/ and or transitioning ARPA funded projects while focusing on sustainability planning to determine how we will continue our work after ARPA dollars are exhausted.

c. What are the demographic impacts of any fines and fees accessed by your department? Are there disproportionate impacts on any particular groups?

OOE does not collect any fines or fees from community residents; however in 2026, we plan to lead an initiative that assesses County and municipal fines and fees that have a disparate impact on community members.

9. If your department were to receive some additional funding for addressing equity, what specific strategic plan priority would you address, what would be the project/activity and intended outcome, and how much would it cost?

We would establish a community advisory board of stakeholders (community ambassadors) to support community engagement efforts who are trusted messengers within Milwaukee's County's municipalities and community populations ($50,000).

We would also request supplemental support to keep our social media activity current and responsive. As priority projects shift on a daily basis, an expert to assist in the development and execution of social media strategies would prove invaluable in expanding reach across the more 900,000 residents across Milwaukee County ($35,000).

10. What is your department doing to dismantle barriers to diverse and inclusive communities, including meeting multilingual needs and other communication or accessibility barriers?

OOE applied for and was selected to receive technical assistance and resources to advance a language access project as part of a Placed Based Equity initiative of the Governmental Alliance for Racial Equity. This project is based on the philosophy that government and community should lead efforts using a co-governance model that promotes mutually beneficial strategies. The goal is threefold: increase multilingual access; improve accessibility through interpretation (i.e., ASL); plain language.

The Placed Based Equity Initiative leverages partnerships with diverse community partners and stakeholder groups, as well as with the appropriate County departments, boards, and commissions to better understand and incorporate processes and practice to meet the multilingual and accessibility needs of the department's various constituencies which include County staff, residents, and community partner organizations serving diverse residents and communities. We partner with local media outlets to share information about County resources and programs in different languages and also work to make sure communication modalities are accessible to people with disabilities.

GLOSSARY

Communities of color: In the context of the Milwaukee County Racial Equity Budget Tool, the term communities of color is interchangeable with Black and Brown communities and inclusive of all non-white populations of color.

Disadvantaged communities: A collective term for referencing communities that have historically experienced inequities where they learn, live, and work that were/are not optimal due to disenfranchisement, disinvestment, marginalization, racism, and other systems of oppression.

Diversity: Diversity includes all the ways in which people differ, and it encompasses all the different characteristics that make one individual or group different from another. It is all-inclusive and recognizes everyone and every group as part of the diversity that should be valued. A broad definition includes not only race, ethnicity, and gender — the groups that most often come to mind when the term “diversity” is used — but also age, national origin, religion, disability, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, education, marital status, language, and physical appearance. It also involves different ideas, perspectives, and values.

Diverse group: As it relates to question 5, an intentional effort to include individuals from different racial, ethnic, gender, and social backgrounds proportionate to the diversity of the department.

Economic data: Numerical data collected based on service delivery criteria determined by departments.

Equity: The just, fair, and impartial treatment, acceptance, or behavior of people without favoritism or discrimination. Equity means righting wrongs, doing what’s right, and giving people what they need to thrive, which is different from equality, which means everyone gets the same thing regardless of circumstance or need.

Frontline employees: A grouping of Milwaukee County employees that serves as the initial point of contact for service users or a range of employees from all levels of the workforce with emphasis on the inclusion of direct service rendering staff.

Inclusion: Assurance that the culture, values, and opinions of individuals and groups are represented in the decision-making processes.

Inclusive workforce: A workplace environment that recognizes the contributions of all employees, while valuing their social status, race, gender, or other demographic classifications.

Key stakeholders: Both internal and external individuals, agencies, or organizations who participate in the planning, development, implementation and decision-making process of an activity, process, or service delivery. (AMOP: Key stakeholders are service users, the workforce, partners, governing boards, donors, suppliers, taxpayers, regulatory bodies, policy makers, funders, and local and professional communities.)

Multilingual needs: The ability of Milwaukee County departments to address linguistic needs for all service users through staffing, documentation, and other communication platforms.

Professional advancement: Opportunities for staff to build their capacity and ascend or pursue lateral movement to further advance their career trajectory.

Racial data: Demographic data collected by Milwaukee County departments that identifies the race/ethnicity of service recipients.

Racial equity: The just and fair inclusion of all people in society, regardless of their race/ethnicity, with unfettered ability to participate, prosper, and reach their full potential. Racial equity is achieved when race no longer determines one’s health and socioeconomic outcomes and when everyone has what they need to thrive and decide what’s best for themselves, their families, and their communities, no matter where they live.

Service user: Current or potential user of Milwaukee County services.

Unintended consequences: Outcomes of a purposeful action that are not intended or foreseen.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

PURPOSE

1) What is the purpose of using this tool?

The Racial Equity Budget Tool (REBT) has many intended purposes:

- It is about making an intentional connection between the strategic plan and our budget. We cannot sufficiently change our institution if we do not think critically about how and what we are spending money on.
- Whether we are making investments or disinvestments, we must do so with racial equity as the key guiding principle to those important decisions.
- It is meant to spur conversation on topics related to the strategic focus areas among department leaders and employees so we are all challenging ourselves to think critically about our efforts to advance the vision.
- This tool is an opportunity to baseline departmental efforts to make informed enterprise-wide decisions.

These are only some of the many answers to why we are using a tool to assess budget decisions.

2) What other jurisdictions have used a racial equity budget tool? Where did the budget tool questions come from?

Milwaukee County's REBT builds on the success of other jurisdictions in implementing a budget tool. Jurisdictions Milwaukee County looked to for guidance include the City of Seattle, the City of Portland (Ore.), King County (Wash.), and the City of San Antonio. Resources from the Government Alliance on Race and Equity (GARE) were also used. The questions are largely framed around Milwaukee County's strategic plan.

3) How does this tool work when departments must make budget cuts year over year? What is the point of doing this when departments don't have a lot of latitude about what disinvestments to make?

Milwaukee County's structural deficit and budget challenges are no secret. However, Milwaukee County still has an annual budget of over $1 billion. Whether the County is making disinvestments or investments, those decisions must be made with racial equity at the forefront of decision-makers' minds. Departments should think critically about their current assumptions and spending versus shifting investments to address root-causes of inequities.

COMPLETING THE TOOL

4) Are there right answers to the questions?

Responses to this tool will inform our future action to see where Milwaukee County can improve on the path to health and racial equity. There are no right answers to the questions, and each department is starting in a different place, serves different people with different needs, and faces a different set of barriers and opportunities. While there are no right answers, the information provided in the tool will be used for decision making throughout the budget process and will be available to the public. Therefore, answers should be robust, defensible, and easy to understand. Your department's answer may look very different than another department's answer and that is okay as long as the answers address the question.

5) What if there are inequities to other groups other than racial groups? Should we be talking about those inequities in our analysis?

Yes! Milwaukee County is race forward, but not race exclusive. If there are other inequities identified in your analysis, please include them.

6) Does every department complete one tool, or is it one tool for each division?

Please submit one tool per department. Responses can be broken down at the division level within your department's tool, as appropriate. All questions should be completed.

7) Who is responsible for filling out the budget tool?

The department head is ultimately responsible for the content in the REBT. It is up to department leadership to determine who in their department is most appropriate to be involved in completing questions in the tool, which will differ from department to department. Likely people to include are department leaders, fiscal staff, and administrative staff.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

8) Is this tool supposed to imply that we should be taking actions on each of these items? Are the questions meant to be directives to departments?

The REBT will focus on an equity analysis of decisions for

A budget is a reflection of priorities. Ultimately, Milwaukee County's budget should reflect our values and advance our vision and strategic plan. However, we acknowledge our organization is on a journey to continuously improve our efforts toward health and racial equity. The REBT is meant to spur conversations among department leaders and staff about what they are and are not able to do in a given budget year to advance the vision. To that end, the tool is not an absolute directive to departments. We fully expect that some departments' answers to some of the questions will be that they are not doing anything this year with an explanation about why that is the case. Looking ahead to future years, departments will be expected to show how their budgets help Milwaukee County make progress toward its vision.

9) How do I use this when my work is statutorily required?

What services Milwaukee County provides is often statutorily required. However, how we do our work usually is not a directive. This tool is meant to challenge us all to think about how to do the enormous part of our work that is within our discretion and control.

10) Is there a standard approach all departments are expected to take to answer the questions?

No. Answer the questions based on the approach your department currently takes on these items.

11) What type of analysis is expected for each of the questions?

It depends on what your department is currently doing in each area. Please use the diverse expertise and experiences of staff in your department to determine the most appropriate way for your department to answer the questions.

12) What part of the budget is this tool being applied to?

new policies, programs, and plans under consideration, and the department's ongoing commitment to equity. Your department is asked to identify what considerations are considered in the overall budget to maximize equitable outcomes.

Performance, Strategy and Budget and the County Board.

USING THE DATA

13) Who will receive the data departments provide in the REBT? Who will be expected to answer questions about the information provided?

Responses to the REBT will be publicly available and will be presented to the County Board. If any decision-makers (e.g., County Executive, County Board Supervisors, department directors) have questions about the information provided in the REBT, the department should be prepared to answer them. We are all partners in Milwaukee County's strategic planning effort to achieve racial equity, and the budget tool is in-part meant to inform and focus conversations around strategic priorities, understanding that not all questions have known answers or solutions.

14) What if someone questions the analysis, conclusions, or recommendations made in the budget tool?

Like all research and analysis, there will be questions and critiques and we should embrace these important conversations. The work presented in the budget tool should be defensible, but most of these questions do not have a clear right or wrong answer. If someone finds something wrong in the analysis, then we need to fix it. However, if it is a question about the interpretation and meaning of the analysis, then we can make space for different perspectives to find the best path forward with the information we have available.

14) Will the budget tool submissions be scored?

No, the REBT submissions will not be scored. However, they will be made available to the public and reviewed by the County Executive's office, the Office of Equity, the Office of

LOGISTICS

16) When will the budget tool be due?

The REBT is due on July 15 — the same due date as the requested budget.

17) Where do I go if I have questions?

If you understand the question, but have difficulty determining how to answer a question, please first try to problem solve within your department by looping in additional experts (e.g., people leaders, frontline staff, etc.).

If you need assistance understanding what the question is asking, contact your Budget Analyst for assistance.

The Office of Equity should only be contacted on questions related to racial equity components (glossary, concepts, etc.) that are unclear and cannot be addressed by your budget analyst. Send correspondence via email to equityoffice@milwaukeecountywi.gov.
