By achieving racial equity, Milwaukee is the healthiest county in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE COUNTY VISION STATEMENT

Overview

Racism has been and is a public health crisis in Milwaukee County. According to the County Health Rankings, Milwaukee County is, and has consistently been, one of the lowest-ranked counties for health in Wisconsin and, according to Federal Reserve Economic Data, Milwaukee County is one of our nation's most racially segregated areas.

According to 2019 statistics, a white person lives, on average, nearly 14 years longer than a black person and the infant mortality rate is nearly three (3) times higher for black infants compared to white infants. Race is a social construction with no biologic basis, yet racism may produce an assigned societal value based on the way a person looks that has resulted in race being a consistent predictor of a person's quality and length of life.

The Racial Equity Budget Tool (REBT) is a structured racial equity lens for departments to use to critically assess the impacts of budget decisions on communities of color. The tool is structured around Milwaukee County's strategic focus areas to help departments and decision makers better understand the pain points and opportunities to advancing the County's vision.

Milwaukee County's Racial Equity Budget Tool (REBT) is designed to:

Make intentional connections between the strategic plan and the budget.

Use racial equity as the key guiding principle for important decisions regarding investments or disinvestments.

Initiate conversations on topics related to the three-year strategic objectives among department leaders and employees.

Provide baseline data on departmental efforts to inform enterprise-wide decisions.

Milwaukee County Strategic Focus Areas

In 2019, Milwaukee County launched its first strategic plan in 20 years. This plan explicitly recognizes that racism is a public health crisis and leads with the vision that: By achieving racial equity, Milwaukee is the healthiest county in Wisconsin.

As part of the strategic plan, Milwaukee County leaders have committed to use a racial equity budget tool to ensure resource allocations advance the strategic focus areas and vision. The questions in this budget tool were guided by the strategic plan and were informed by best practices from other jurisdictions and the Government Alliance on Race and Equity (GARE).

1. Create Intentional Inclusion

- Reflect the full diversity of Milwaukee County at every level of County government.
- Create and nurture an inclusive culture across the Milwaukee County government.
- Increase the number of Milwaukee County contracts awarded to minority- and women-owned business.

2. Bridge the Gap

- Determine what, where, and how we deliver services based on the resolution of health disparities.
- Break down silos across Milwaukee County government to maximize access to and quality of services offered.
- Apply a racial equity lens to all decisions.

3. Invest in Equity

- Invest “upstream” to address root causes of health disparities.
- Enhance Milwaukee County’s fiscal health and sustainability.
- Dismantle barriers to diverse and inclusive communities.

Instructions

1. Submit only one REBT per department.

The REBT should reflect an analysis of the suite of budget decisions per department. Within answers to each question, details may be provided at the division level, as determined appropriate. Decision points should be analyzed as part of the comprehensive effort that your department is undertaking in addressing racial equity in programs, plans, policies, and power structures. Since departments are often tasked with cutting their budgets to reflect a reduction from their previous fiscal year's budget, a REBT should also include an analysis of how proposed reductions may or may not burden Black and Brown individuals and communities.

2. Keep the focus on the analysis of departments' improvements, reductions, and overall budget.

The REBT will focus on a racial equity analysis of decisions for new policies, programs, and plans under consideration, and the department's ongoing commitment to racial equity.

3. Use demographic data to help your department determine benefits and burdens of new decisions and overall budget.

State and federally collected demographic data resources are provided in Appendix C. Departments are encouraged to use any data they collect on their service users throughout the completion of the REBT. Data from other relevant and credible sources a department may have is also acceptable.

4. REBT technical assistance information and opportunities.

If you have questions related to the 2025 REBT, please attend one of the Strategy, Budget and Performance Open Office hours and bring the questions. All persons who may be expected to assist the department director in completing the REBT will be encouraged to participate.

- If you understand the question, but have difficulty determining how to answer a question, please contact your Budget Analyst for assistance.
- The Office of Equity should only be contacted on questions related to the racial equity components (glossary, concepts, etc..) that are unclear and cannot be addressed by your Budget Analyst. Send correspondence via email to equityoffice@milwaukeecountywi.gov.

RACIAL EQUITY BUDGET TOOL

Date Submitted: 7/10/2025

Department: Medical Examiner

Please note: each response field below has a 2,500-character limit.

STRATEGIC FOCUS AREA 1: CREATE INTENTIONAL INCLUSION

1. What activities are you doing to attract and retain a diverse and inclusive workforce in your department? What are the associated costs of these activities?

Before each job posting, the Job Evaluation Questionnaire (JEQ) is reviewed to identify and remove outdated biases and to eliminate any unnecessary qualifications that are not directly related to the responsibilities of the position.

Since early 2020, the Medical Examiner's Office has partnered with Marquette University to employ students through the federal work-study program. Through this initiative, we have hired economically disadvantaged students, 60% of whom identified as minorities. In 2022, we expanded the program to include the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, hiring additional students—66% of whom identified as minorities. These students received comprehensive exposure to all aspects of death investigation and are well-positioned as strong candidates for future employment in the field. Our office continues to actively hire students through this program, with a strong commitment to ensuring that minority students are consistently included and supported.

In partnership with the Medical College of Wisconsin (MCW), the Medical Examiner's Office sponsors a Forensic Pathology Fellowship Program and participates in the training of pathology residents and medical students. Both institutions are equal opportunity employers and do not discriminate in hiring or employment on the basis of age, race, creed, religion, color, disability, marital status, sex, national origin, ancestry, sexual orientation, veteran status, or disability. The Medical Examiner's Office recognizes that a diverse educational environment fosters a richer learning experience. The office is deeply committed to educating and training a workforce that is not only technically proficient but also culturally competent. One of its core goals is to develop the next generation of diverse physicians and to equip all trainees with the cultural awareness necessary to effectively serve an increasingly multicultural society.

2. How do you use professional development and advancement opportunities to promote equity in your department's workforce? What resources are used to support these opportunities for professional development and advancement?

A variety of training opportunities are offered through Milwaukee County Human Resources, and employees are encouraged to take advantage of these resources to support their professional development.

Since the fall of 2023, the office has been holding monthly in-service meetings designed to expose all staff to a range of topics relevant to the medicolegal death investigation and practice of forensic pathology. These sessions provide a collaborative space to learn about current issues and best practices in death investigation. Meetings are available both in person and via Teams.

The Medical Examiner's Office hosts an annual two-day Forensic Science Seminar, bringing together medical examiners, coroners, medicolegal death investigators, law enforcement personnel, and funeral home directors from across Wisconsin. Employees of the Medical Examiner's Office are encouraged to attend the seminar and are exempt from the registration fee.

In addition, employees are encouraged to attend professional meetings and conferences that explore emerging aspects of medicolegal death investigation, including the biannual meetings of the Wisconsin Coroners and Medical Examiners Association (WCMEA), the annual meeting of the American Academy of Forensic Sciences (AAFS), and the annual meeting of the National Association of Medical Examiners (NAME). The National Association of Medical Examiners annual meeting is available both in person and virtually.

3. Our employees can be a great resource for innovation and knowing what is working well and what needs work. Have you engaged a diverse group of frontline employees to inform decisions about your proposed budget changes? If yes, how was input solicited, who was involved, and what were the results?

The Medical Examiner's Office 2026 budget request does not contain any proposed budget changes. Any proposed future changes will prioritize employee engagement through meetings and/or surveys.

4. Are you tracking contracts with minority and women-owned business? If yes, please share percentages of each. If no, why not?

The Medical Examiner's Office does not track contracts with minority- and woman-owned businesses. The office is responsible for conducting medicolegal death investigations of suspicious, unexplained, or violent deaths within Milwaukee County and provides autopsy services for Kenosha, Racine, Jefferson, Ozaukee and Outagamie Counties. While most of our contracts are with governmental agencies or non-profit organizations, we do maintain a price agreement with a minority-owned business for body transport services.

STRATEGIC FOCUS AREA 2: BRIDGE THE GAP

5. How and when have service users, in diverse and inclusive communities, and other key stakeholders been engaged to inform decisions about changes in funding levels for services provided in your requested budget (who was involved, what was the forum, what were the results)?

Since early 2020, the Medical Examiner's Office has maintained a user-friendly, searchable public access feed on its website that displays all death investigations in real time. The office also contributes fatality data to the Milwaukee County Motor Vehicle Crash Dashboard, which launched in March 2024, and the Opioid Overdose Dashboard, which went live in February 2025. Additionally, the office publishes an Annual Report containing comprehensive mortality data, available to the public on its website. While these tools do not directly address funding levels, they significantly enhance transparency by providing open access to critical data and showcasing the office's ongoing contributions to Milwaukee County.

6. Describe ways in which demographic and economic data were used to prioritize resource distribution. (Data can include sources found in the resources section of this tool, department collected data, or any other relevant data from other sources.)

- a. Please provide specific examples of data and how that influenced decision making.
- b. Are there gaps in the data that need to be addressed to better understand disparities in equity?

Milwaukee County Medical Examiner's Office investigates deaths in Milwaukee County as outlined in Wisconsin State Statutes (979.012). According to the 2020 United States Census, Milwaukee County has a population of 939,489. The racial and ethnic composition is approximately as follows: 55% White, 30% Black or African American, 15% Hispanic and Latino, 4% Asian, less than 1% Native American, and 2% other. The Medical Examiner's Office operates in alignment with national standards for forensic death investigation, placing a strong emphasis on professionalism, accuracy, and service to the community. The core functions of the office include investigating suspicious, unexplained, and violent deaths to determine the cause and manner of death; identifying trends such as infectious diseases or drug overdoses to support public health efforts and help prevent future fatalities; providing expert testimony and forensic evidence to assist in criminal investigations and legal proceedings; and safeguarding the interests of deceased individuals and their families.

Approximately 75% of the Medical Examiner's budget is allocated to personnel costs. Consequently, the majority of our resources are focused on core services such as conducting death scene investigations in homes, public spaces, and other locations; performing autopsies to determine the cause and manner of death; conducting toxicology testing; issuing cremation permits; and completing death certifications.

Death investigations in Milwaukee County serve all citizens, including those in historically underserved, marginalized, and/or adversely affected groups.

7. a. How does your budget reflect efforts to work across departments to break down silos to maximize access to and quality of services offered?
- b. How does this help us achieve the vision of achieving equity and health?

Our budget supports the routine collection and dissemination of vital health statistics. The Medical Examiner's Office provides statistical data on sudden natural deaths, infant mortality, drug-related fatalities, homicides, suicides, and accidental deaths within Milwaukee County. Historically, through this work, Milwaukee County was able to quickly identify disparities in COVID-19 deaths and respond effectively.

Currently, the Medical Examiner's Office data play a crucial role in addressing the ongoing opioid epidemic. Over 80% of drug-related deaths in Milwaukee County involve narcotic substances such as opioids—predominantly fentanyl, fentanyl analogs, heroin, and morphine—or combinations of opioids with other substances like stimulants. This data helps identify trends in overdose deaths, including changes in the drugs involved, demographics affected, and geographic areas with higher mortality rates. By monitoring these trends, public health officials can respond more effectively to sudden increases in overdose fatalities potentially linked to specific drug batches, enabling timely press briefings to inform the public.

Collaboration with the High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area (HIDTA) program on immediate reporting of suspected fatal overdoses allows law enforcement to investigate cases promptly and aids in the arrest of drug dealers. The Medical Examiner's Office operations and partnerships with other agencies are integral to the community's response to the opioid crisis. The Medical Examiner's data is essential for other agencies conducting epidemiological analyses, identifying risk factors, informing intervention strategies, and guiding public health initiatives focused on preventing drug abuse and reducing overdose deaths.

Most importantly, timely death investigations and accurate determinations of cause of death help Milwaukee County families cope with grief and loss.

8. What are the expected benefits and potential unintended consequences to disadvantaged communities of your proposed budget changes?
 - a. What analysis did you do to determine the expected benefits and potential unintended consequences?
 - b. What will your department do to mitigate unintended consequences resulting from your proposed budget changes?
 - c. What are the demographic impacts of any fines and fees assessed by your department? Are there disproportionate impacts on any particular groups?

The Medical Examiner's budget does not include any significant changes and is not expected to result in unintended consequences for disadvantaged communities.

9. If your department were to receive some additional funding for addressing equity, what specific strategic plan priority would you address, what would be the project/activity and intended outcome, and how much would it cost?

Ensuring access to grief services within the Medical Examiner's Office will remain a key priority. Dedicated grief support is critically important for families who have experienced the sudden loss of a child, as well as those impacted by homicides, suicides, accidents and drug overdose fatalities.

Currently, the office offers grief services and outreach specifically related to overdose deaths, supported through opioid grant funding in collaboration with the Medical College of Wisconsin. This collaboration provides for two part-time licensed social workers who are present at the Medical Examiner's Office several times per week. These professionals deliver trauma-informed support to families affected by overdose fatalities and assist in connecting them with appropriate community resources and services.

The primary goal of this program is to reduce the long-term emotional and psychological impact on surviving family members. Funding for this critical initiative is secured through 2027.

10. What is your department doing to dismantle barriers to diverse and inclusive communities, including meeting multilingual needs and other communication or accessibility barriers?

The Medical Examiner's Office utilizes interpreter services to effectively communicate with families who do not speak English. This ensures that all families receive accurate information and compassionate support, regardless of language barriers, and reflects the office's commitment to equity, accessibility, and respectful service for all members of the community.

In addition, the Medical Examiner's Office strives to be sensitive and responsive to the needs of traditional families and communities when objections to autopsy are raised on personal, religious, or cultural grounds. The Objection to Performance of Autopsy on Bodies Under Medical Examiner Jurisdiction Policy outlines the procedures and considerations involved in addressing such concerns and provides context regarding the origins and significance of these special requests. Objections based on religious or cultural beliefs are the most common, and in these instances, open communication with the family or community religious leaders is often key to finding a respectful resolution. The addition of a computed tomography scan (CT scan) in the new facility will be particularly valuable in these situations, as it may allow for a non-invasive alternative to a full autopsy, thereby helping to balance the needs of the investigation with the sensitivities of the family.

The Medical Examiner's Office is committed to conducting thorough and professional death investigations to determine the cause and manner of death, while upholding the highest standards of respect and dignity for decedents and their families. Each case is approached with sensitivity and care, recognizing the emotional impact on loved ones. The office strives to balance its legal and public health responsibilities with compassion, ensuring that all individuals—regardless of background—are treated with respect and that families receive timely, accurate information during a time of profound loss.

GLOSSARY

Communities of color: In the context of the Milwaukee County Racial Equity Budget Tool, the term communities of color is interchangeable with Black and Brown communities and inclusive of all non-white populations of color.

Disadvantaged communities: A collective term for referencing communities that have historically experienced inequities where they learn, live, and work that were/are not optimal due to disenfranchisement, disinvestment, marginalization, racism, and other systems of oppression.

Diversity: Diversity includes all the ways in which people differ, and it encompasses all the different characteristics that make one individual or group different from another. It is all-inclusive and recognizes everyone and every group as part of the diversity that should be valued. A broad definition includes not only race, ethnicity, and gender — the groups that most often come to mind when the term “diversity” is used — but also age, national origin, religion, disability, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, education, marital status, language, and physical appearance. It also involves different ideas, perspectives, and values.

Diverse group: As it relates to question 5, an intentional effort to include individuals from different racial, ethnic, gender, and social backgrounds proportionate to the diversity of the department.

Economic data: Numerical data collected based on service delivery criteria determined by departments.

Equity: The just, fair, and impartial treatment, acceptance, or behavior of people without favoritism or discrimination. Equity means righting wrongs, doing what’s right, and giving people what they need to thrive, which is different from equality, which means everyone gets the same thing regardless of circumstance or need.

Frontline employees: A grouping of Milwaukee County employees that serves as the initial point of contact for service users or a range of employees from all levels of the workforce with emphasis on the inclusion of direct service rendering staff.

Inclusion: Assurance that the culture, values, and opinions of individuals and groups are represented in the decision-making processes.

Inclusive workforce: A workplace environment that recognizes the contributions of all employees, while valuing their social status, race, gender, or other demographic classifications.

Key stakeholders: Both internal and external individuals, agencies, or organizations who participate in the planning, development, implementation and decision-making process of an activity, process, or service delivery. (AMOP: Key stakeholders are service users, the workforce, partners, governing boards, donors, suppliers, taxpayers, regulatory bodies, policy makers, funders, and local and professional communities.)

Multilingual needs: The ability of Milwaukee County departments to address linguistic needs for all service users through staffing, documentation, and other communication platforms.

Professional advancement: Opportunities for staff to build their capacity and ascend or pursue lateral movement to further advance their career trajectory.

Racial data: Demographic data collected by Milwaukee County departments that identifies the race/ethnicity of service recipients.

Racial equity: The just and fair inclusion of all people in society, regardless of their race/ethnicity, with unfettered ability to participate, prosper, and reach their full potential. Racial equity is achieved when race no longer determines one’s health and socioeconomic outcomes and when everyone has what they need to thrive and decide what’s best for themselves, their families, and their communities, no matter where they live.

Service user: Current or potential user of Milwaukee County services.

Unintended consequences: Outcomes of a purposeful action that are not intended or foreseen.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

PURPOSE

1) What is the purpose of using this tool?

The Racial Equity Budget Tool (REBT) has many intended purposes:

- It is about making an intentional connection between the strategic plan and our budget. We cannot sufficiently change our institution if we do not think critically about how and what we are spending money on.
- Whether we are making investments or disinvestments, we must do so with racial equity as the key guiding principle to those important decisions.
- It is meant to spur conversation on topics related to the strategic focus areas among department leaders and employees so we are all challenging ourselves to think critically about our efforts to advance the vision.
- This tool is an opportunity to baseline departmental efforts to make informed enterprise-wide decisions.

These are only some of the many answers to why we are using a tool to assess budget decisions.

2) What other jurisdictions have used a racial equity budget tool? Where did the budget tool questions come from?

Milwaukee County's REBT builds on the success of other jurisdictions in implementing a budget tool. Jurisdictions Milwaukee County looked to for guidance include the City of Seattle, the City of Portland (Ore.), King County (Wash.), and the City of San Antonio. Resources from the Government Alliance on Race and Equity (GARE) were also used. The questions are largely framed around Milwaukee County's strategic plan.

3) How does this tool work when departments must make budget cuts year over year? What is the point of doing this when departments don't have a lot of latitude about what disinvestments to make?

Milwaukee County's structural deficit and budget challenges are no secret. However, Milwaukee County still has an annual budget of over $1 billion. Whether the County is making disinvestments or investments, those decisions must be made with racial equity at the forefront of decision-makers' minds. Departments should think critically about their current assumptions and spending versus shifting investments to address root-causes of inequities.

COMPLETING THE TOOL

4) Are there right answers to the questions?

Responses to this tool will inform our future action to see where Milwaukee County can improve on the path to health and racial equity. There are no right answers to the questions, and each department is starting in a different place, serves different people with different needs, and faces a different set of barriers and opportunities. While there are no right answers, the information provided in the tool will be used for decision making throughout the budget process and will be available to the public. Therefore, answers should be robust, defensible, and easy to understand. Your department's answer may look very different than another department's answer and that is okay as long as the answers address the question.

5) What if there are inequities to other groups other than racial groups? Should we be talking about those inequities in our analysis?

Yes! Milwaukee County is race forward, but not race exclusive. If there are other inequities identified in your analysis, please include them.

6) Does every department complete one tool, or is it one tool for each division?

Please submit one tool per department. Responses can be broken down at the division level within your department's tool, as appropriate. All questions should be completed.

7) Who is responsible for filling out the budget tool?

The department head is ultimately responsible for the content in the REBT. It is up to department leadership to determine who in their department is most appropriate to be involved in completing questions in the tool, which will differ from department to department. Likely people to include are department leaders, fiscal staff, and administrative staff.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

8) Is this tool supposed to imply that we should be taking actions on each of these items? Are the questions meant to be directives to departments?

The REBT will focus on an equity analysis of decisions for

A budget is a reflection of priorities. Ultimately, Milwaukee County's budget should reflect our values and advance our vision and strategic plan. However, we acknowledge our organization is on a journey to continuously improve our efforts toward health and racial equity. The REBT is meant to spur conversations among department leaders and staff about what they are and are not able to do in a given budget year to advance the vision. To that end, the tool is not an absolute directive to departments. We fully expect that some departments' answers to some of the questions will be that they are not doing anything this year with an explanation about why that is the case. Looking ahead to future years, departments will be expected to show how their budgets help Milwaukee County make progress toward its vision.

9) How do I use this when my work is statutorily required?

What services Milwaukee County provides is often statutorily required. However, how we do our work usually is not a directive. This tool is meant to challenge us all to think about how to do the enormous part of our work that is within our discretion and control.

10) Is there a standard approach all departments are expected to take to answer the questions?

No. Answer the questions based on the approach your department currently takes on these items.

11) What type of analysis is expected for each of the questions?

It depends on what your department is currently doing in each area. Please use the diverse expertise and experiences of staff in your department to determine the most appropriate way for your department to answer the questions.

12) What part of the budget is this tool being applied to?

new policies, programs, and plans under consideration, and the department's ongoing commitment to equity. Your department is asked to identify what considerations are considered in the overall budget to maximize equitable outcomes.

Performance, Strategy and Budget and the County Board.

USING THE DATA

13) Who will receive the data departments provide in the REBT? Who will be expected to answer questions about the information provided?

Responses to the REBT will be publicly available and will be presented to the County Board. If any decision-makers (e.g., County Executive, County Board Supervisors, department directors) have questions about the information provided in the REBT, the department should be prepared to answer them. We are all partners in Milwaukee County's strategic planning effort to achieve racial equity, and the budget tool is in-part meant to inform and focus conversations around strategic priorities, understanding that not all questions have known answers or solutions.

14) What if someone questions the analysis, conclusions, or recommendations made in the budget tool?

Like all research and analysis, there will be questions and critiques and we should embrace these important conversations. The work presented in the budget tool should be defensible, but most of these questions do not have a clear right or wrong answer. If someone finds something wrong in the analysis, then we need to fix it. However, if it is a question about the interpretation and meaning of the analysis, then we can make space for different perspectives to find the best path forward with the information we have available.

14) Will the budget tool submissions be scored?

No, the REBT submissions will not be scored. However, they will be made available to the public and reviewed by the County Executive's office, the Office of Equity, the Office of

LOGISTICS

16) When will the budget tool be due?

The REBT is due on July 15 — the same due date as the requested budget.

17) Where do I go if I have questions?

If you understand the question, but have difficulty determining how to answer a question, please first try to problem solve within your department by looping in additional experts (e.g., people leaders, frontline staff, etc.).

If you need assistance understanding what the question is asking, contact your Budget Analyst for assistance.

The Office of Equity should only be contacted on questions related to racial equity components (glossary, concepts, etc.) that are unclear and cannot be addressed by your budget analyst. Send correspondence via email to equityoffice@milwaukeecountywi.gov.
