“Cudahy Woods”
State Natural Area (SNA)
Designated in 2002
SNAs protect outstanding examples of native natural communities harboring natural features essentially unaltered by humans or those areas that have substantially recovered from disturbance.

Cudahy Nature Preserve is an outstanding example of the hardwood forests that once covered most of Milwaukee County prior to European settlement. This diverse woodland includes a small stream separating the lowland hardwood forest from an old-growth beech forest. Trails traverse the site, providing hikers with a glimpse of what the County would have looked like 200 years ago. The SNA is an eBird hotspot. See what has been observed here at eBird.org/ebird/wi/hotspots and submit your observations at eBird.org.
